

Haryana govt to fill up 50,000 vacancies: M.L. Khattar

Chandigarh: The Haryana government has initiated the process to fill up 50,000 vacancies in various departments, chief minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Saturday said.

Khattar said that the departments have been directed to recruit employees temporarily on contract basis for a year. The chief minister stated this in his meeting with the officers of Haryana Civil Service, 2013-batch, in Chandigarh. He said that the offices of Regional Transport Authority and the system to issue licences are being made online and the rules for maps of buildings are being simplified.

He exhorted the officers not to link themselves with any political party or group and work with sincerity and dedication by differentiating between the right and wrong. Khattar said that e-registration system has been introduced to check corruption in the office of Tehsildar (revenue official). Similarly, emphasis has been laid on maximum use of information technology to eliminate corruption, he said, according to an official release.

Also, the government is laying stress on maximum use of online system so that officers know the status of movement of file. The chief minister also appreciated the maximum use of IT being made by the officers. He advised the HCS officers to connect themselves with common man and ensure that the benefits of schemes like cleanliness drive, Beti Bachao-Beti Padhao programme and other such schemes percolate to the grass-root level.
